

Almost

In the Book of Acts, we read the story of Paul speaking before King Agrippa. The King said to Paul, “Almost you persuade me to be a Christian.”

How sad this is. To listen to a gospel presentation and then say, “Almost,” is indeed a close but far situation.

Paul was given the opportunity to speak to Roman officials. He was a Roman citizen and used the opportunity to speak up and present Christ.

What did he say? He explained that Jesus Christ had come in fulfillment of prophecies. Many years before He was born, the Old Testament prophets had said He would arrive to save mankind. Jesus died to pay for the sins of us all. And yes, no one is perfect, and death would be our lot but Jesus died in our place. We need to accept Him as our substitute.

Acts 16:31 says, “Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and you shall be saved.”
